PETTICREW DOLL

This doll is nearly 300 years old! She belonged to a woman called Anne Petticrew and she was handed down through the female line of her family before being given to the Museum in the 1960s. The Petticrew doll is made of painted wood and she's dressed in the fashions of the 1730s, and has green stockings and shoes with leather soles.

This Christmas you might be hoping to get a doll as a present - why not try and make a decoration inspired by the Petticrew Doll?
